Why LIQUID MANSION

IS THE MOST EFFICIENT POLISH FOR HOSPITAL FLOORS

EASE IN USE

Its fluid state makes Liquid Mansion exceptionally easy to apply. The fine quality wax—its chief constituent—immediately responds to the action of the polisher and in a few seconds a very brilliant finish is obtained.

ECONOMY

Only the thinnest film of Liquid Mansion is required to obtain a bright and lasting polish. Its remarkable spreading powers effect a great saving in the amount of polish required to polish a floor efficiently.

HEALTH

Liquid Mansion contains a powerful antiseptic which makes it an effective protection against germs. It also thoroughly cleans the surface.

MAINTAINING APPEARANCE

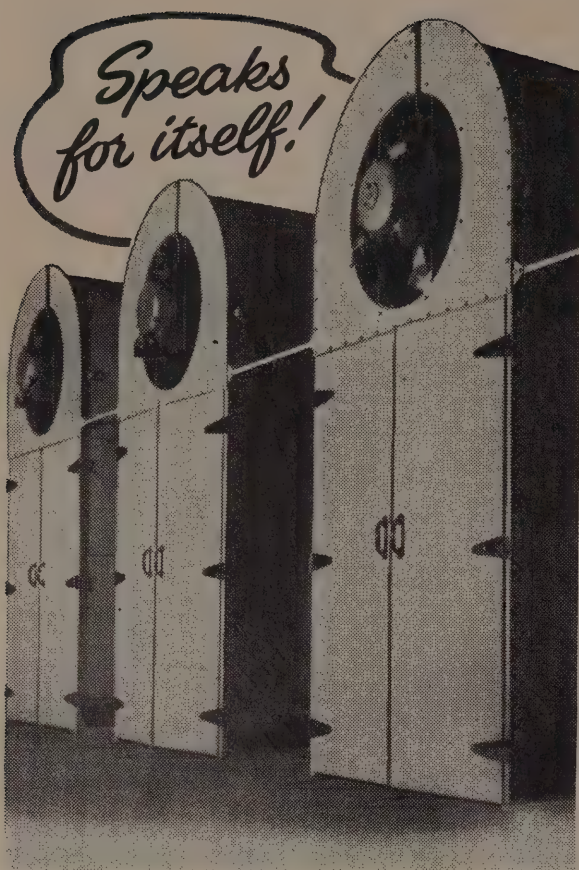

The most attractive floors are those which are regularly polished. Liquid Mansion ensures the highest degree of finish to Stained or Parquet Floors and Linoleum.

If you have any difficulty in obtaining, write to Sales Dept., H.Y.B., Chiswick Products, Ltd., Chiswick, London, W.4.

A famous chemist once said that the progress of a nation can be measured by the soap it uses. Today, in wartime, the consumption of soap per head in Britain is one of the highest in the world.

The march of progress calls for soaps of quality — specialised soaps in scientific forms. In the Hedley factories soap making has been developed to a fine art. Up-to-date machinery and advanced methods of control maintain the Hedley reputation for quality and purity.

In the battery of drying units above, a Hedley soap is passing through one of the final stages of modern manufacture. Different types of Hedley soaps require different processing but the same scientific care is given to every step in their production.

Have You Considered the Merits of SANTRON the New Germicide ?..

Gynæcology
Midwifery

Santron contains a higher percentage of pure potash castor oil soap, and differs from most germicides in that an additional soap solution is not required. It is clean and pleasant to use. When necessary may be applied in undiluted form.

For Hospitals

The essential oils do not produce any overpowering odour. The standard Rideal Walker Test proves the strength on the Typhoid Baccillus to be five times stronger than pure Phenol. Even under the most unfavourable conditions Medical research workers in a London Teaching Hospital have shown that Santron exerts its antiseptic power in a high degree. It is available to Hospitals and Public Institutions in bulk quantities at an amazingly low price.

In General Practice

For cleansing cuts and wounds, sterilization of hands and instruments, Santron is efficient and convenient. Non-poisonous, non-corrosive and harmless to linen or delicate materials.

In the Home

Santron is available to the public through all chemists, and may be indicated for all purposes of personal hygiene, including gargling, as a deodorant, and general disinfecting of sick rooms, and treatment of clothes.

Santron is manufactured solely by Rendells, a name known to the Medical Profession throughout the world for over 50 years. Like all other Rendell Products, it is made under the same scrupulous conditions and control of an independent Medical Board.

Santron is being used by many General and Women's Hospitals, Public Institutions and Factories throughout the Country.

FOR THE
OF HERNIA . . .

The "HECSON"
REGD.

Super Elastic Truss

Strap is fixed to Pad at A. Therefore greater pressure is exerted at B, when the strap is pulled tightly.

PRICE :

Single 37/6 Double 50/-

Further particulars on request from the manufacturers.

Where treatment of Hernia by surgical methods is undesirable for any reasons, the HECSON super elastic truss can be confidently recommended. The Special Feature of the HECSON Truss is that the perineal or under strap is attached to the top of the pad, instead of the lower margin as in the ordinary elastic or old spring truss. Thus it becomes part of the leverage mechanism for increasing the pressure of the pad at its base. In this way the HECSON truss can also be used to control a semi-scrotal hernia, not controlled by an ordinary elastic truss. Made of the finest quality elastic, the HECSON is comfortable and light, and yet gives maximum pressure on the external hernial ring.

ESSE HEAT STORAGE COOKERS are always alight and therefore are ready for use at any time throughout the day and night, yet giving maximum economy in fuel consumption. The enamelled surface coupled with the fuel being smokeless (anthracite or coke) gives a quickly cleaned, trouble free cooker. In the present time when maximum value must be obtained from the food, it will be found that this takes place in a heat storage cooker. The even heating of the oven seals meat and prevents loss of essential juices.

ESSE STEAM-HEATED COOKING EQUIPMENT incorporates the latest approved safety principles.

In the ESSE STEAM-JACKETED BOILING PAN, illustrated here, the inner pan and polished hob is in one piece presenting an uninterrupted hygienic surface.

The ESSE WET-STEAM OVENS have steam connections concealed but readily accessible and the whole assembly presents an easily cleaned exterior. Supplied as single compartments or built up in batteries to suit individual requirements.

FULL-SCALE RADIOGRAPHY . . .

has gained new scope and new diagnostic certainty by the introduction of an outstanding new X-ray film.

Compared with the previous standard film—'Dupli-Tized' Super-Speed film—the new film is of approximately double speed, without sacrifice in contrast or of fineness of grain. Experience shows that for a film of such extreme speed its clarity is unique—and this freedom from chemical fog is important in enhancing diagnostic quality.

This new master X-ray film, the film without a rival, is has opened up prospects of radiographic examination on a large scale. It is a method of great possibilities, but of most exacting demands. It requires extreme speed, high contrast, extremely fine resolution and carefully matched colour-sensitiveness in the photographic material.

To meet these demands, Kodak produced a special new film for fluorography: and on its merits this 'Fluorodak' film has established its position as the most widely used film in miniature radiography—by far!

THE HOSPITAL YEAR REVIEW.

BY THE EDITOR.

THE claims of the Forces upon the manpower of the nation have resulted in each edition of the "Year-Book" published since the outbreak of war being compiled under increasing difficulties. The information it contains is based largely on the Annual Reports of individual hospitals and owing to shortage of staff these are being published much later than in normal times. The lateness in the publication of this edition is greatly regretted, but it was unavoidable. Although the financial statistics refer to the year 1941 every endeavour has been made to bring the directory sections up to date.

Voluntary Hospital Finance, 1941.

The number of hospitals which furnished figures (742) was unfortunately not so high as usual, due partly to the decision on the part of many not to publish Annual Reports and thus economise in the use of paper.

During the year 1941 the voluntary hospitals of Great Britain which furnished figures

Received (for all purposes) ...	£19,412,192
Spent	17,166,271
Leaving a surplus of	£2,245,921

Owing to the reduction in the number of hospitals supplying figures a close comparison with the figures of former years is not possible, but the figures which follow will give an indication as to trends :—

1939 (867 hospitals)
Received	£18,281,801
Spent	18,695,649
Deficit	£413,848
1940 (826 hospitals)
Received	£18,690,650
Spent	16,927,547
Surplus	£1,763,103

The position at the close of 1941 can only be regarded as highly satisfactory, but it is necessary to bear in mind that it is due to a large extent to the fact that the erection of new buildings has been drastically restricted, while the same applies—but to a lesser degree—to repairs to existing buildings and equipment which will have to be put in hand as soon as circumstances permit.

It is unfortunate that it is not possible to present a complete picture owing to the fact that in both 1940 and 1941 fewer hospitals supplied figures than in the previous year. In spite of this, maintenance income rose from £15,947,335 in 1939 to £17,071,765 in 1940, and £17,878,401 in 1941. Expenditure also rose, but to a smaller extent. The net results have been an increase in the amount of surplus on maintenance account from £843,661 in 1939 to £1,981,218 in 1940; the figure for 1941 being almost as large, viz., £1,881,522.

Table 3 shows that the satisfactory financial position of the voluntary hospitals as a whole revealed by the foregoing figures, is a reflection of the position of the majority of individual hospitals. In 1939 the percentage of hospitals with deficits was 40; this figure was reduced in 1940 to 27 and in 1941 to 21, when the total amount of the deficits was only £282,311, compared with surpluses totalling £2,163,833 received by the remaining 79% of the hospitals.

There was a rather substantial drop in the total of free legacies received by the voluntary hospitals during 1941—from £1,769,582 to £1,473,340, or, on the basis of per available bed, from £20·31 to £17·21. This may be partly due to the effect of increased taxation following the outbreak of the war, and partly to the knowledge that a national health service was under contemplation. No detailed proposals with regard to the latter had, however, been made during 1941, and the effect may have been due to increased taxation only.

Receipts from legacies have fluctuated from time to time and it is desirable to take a longer period than one year in order to trace trends. Taking a moving average, based upon the previous three years, the following are the amounts per available bed since the year 1934, from which it will be seen that since the outbreak of the war there has been a gradual decline of receipts from this source :—

1935	£20·42
1936	£20·72
1937	£21·96
1938	£22·13
1939	£22·09
1940	£21·39
1941	£19·52

Expenditure remained fairly steady under the headings "Provisions" and "Surgery & Dispensary," but under "Domestic" and "Salaries & Wages" there were increases which were common to each area. The increase under "Domestic" (Table 5) was almost entirely accounted for by the rise in the cost of fuel (Table 8), while the increase in "Salaries & Wages" is due in the main to higher salaries scales for nurses, which by common consent were overdue.

THE HOSPITAL YEAR

Numbers of Hospitals and Beds.

The abnormal conditions arising out of the war, some of which were referred to in detail in the last edition, have rendered it necessary to give the number of beds usually provided as well as the number available at the present time. From the figures on page 19 it will be seen that while the accommodation for patients in the London area has been temporarily reduced, elsewhere it has been substantially increased. Hospitals temporarily closed owing to war conditions have been included in the statement.

December 1944.

The percentage of beds occupied daily in the large hospitals (see Table 1) remained abnormally low, mainly due to beds being kept vacant under the Emergency Medical Service for the reception of casualties.

Patients treated in the Voluntary Hospitals.

The number of patients treated in the voluntary hospitals of Great Britain during 1941 was :—

1,159,481 treated in the wards, and
5,313,403 treated in the out-patient departments.

Owing to the fact that fewer hospitals gave particulars of their work it is not possible to make comparisons with previous years, beyond noting that whereas in London and the Provinces there was a drop in the number of patients admitted to the wards, there was an increase in the case of Scotland.

A NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE

It is inevitable that proposals for a great forward step in social progress so fundamental and revolutionary as those advanced by the Government for a National Health Service should excite a wide measure of support, and also a considerable measure of criticism over a very wide field. It is a remarkable testimony to democratic principles that the White Paper is, on the Government's admission, a set of tentative proposals for examination. Comment has ranged from the criticism of the expert and the reactions of the principal parties responsible for translating the ideals of the scheme into practical form, to the wholly political view.

The principal parties are, of course, the doctors, the local authorities and the voluntary hospitals, and, following a close examination of the Government's proposals, each party has published its views. It was desirable that their views should be published in order that the public might fully understand the nature and extent of the issues involved. As might have been expected, however, these critical examinations of the Government's proposals have tended to emphasise divergences of opinion. No attempt has been made to assess the amount of common ground to be found in the views so far expressed. To do so is the main purpose of this article.

FUNDAMENTAL CONSIDERATIONS IN A NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE

It will, however, be helpful first to enumerate certain broad considerations that are fundamental to any successful accomplishment of the ideal and aim which the Government has propounded in its expressed desire to make readily available to all the necessary means for the maintenance of health and the alleviation of sickness by the means of a comprehensive health service.

First—the interests of the patient. These should come first in order because they are the first as well as the ultimate consideration. It would be so easy, as the White Paper says, to submerge the interests of the patient in a network of over-organisation and administrative routine. Whatever may be the position as regards other forms of post-war planning, in the matter of plans to deal with the nation's sickness and health, the touchstone throughout must be that no interest is at any point allowed to interfere or threaten the interests of the patient as an individual.

Second—the importance of medical staffing. It is not unnatural to think of an adequate hospital service in terms only of buildings, beds and equipment. In fact, however, the first requirement is the provision in adequate numbers of consultant and specialist doctors and their proper distribution over the country so as to ensure that their services are sufficiently accessible. It is equally true, as the White Paper states, that consultant and specialist medical services must be based on the hospital service. In fact the two are mutually complementary and inseparable. Together they must form the foundations upon which the whole of the rest of the structure of the scheme will be built. Unless these foundations are properly laid, the scheme as a whole can neither attain its object nor achieve those standards of quality that are as necessary as quantity.

Third—the importance of goodwill. To achieve its object it is essential that the Government should secure the wholehearted co-operation of the medical profession, the local authorities and the voluntary hospitals. This is not an easy task—as was made quite clear in the Parliamentary Debates in both Houses when the White Paper was introduced. It would be idle to deny that on all sides there have been, on occasion, feelings of anxiety, suspicion and—in some cases—even mistrust, in spite of the endeavours of the Nuffield Provincial Hospitals Trust, the British Hospitals Association and others to secure a better common understanding and a closer relationship between the various parties; though these endeavours have been successful in outstanding degree in some parts of the country. Unless the arrangements for organisation are such as will establish and promote that understanding and goodwill which alone can lead to wholehearted co-operation, the scheme will fail to provide a service.

Fourth—the importance of the personal element and flexibility.—In some quarters much emphasis is placed on the need to have full regard to the responsibilities of the elected representatives of the people, because the operation of the plan will involve the expenditure of vast sums of public money, both from rates and taxes. It is of the greatest importance, however, that in matters of health the public should be made aware of the concomitant danger from an over-bureaucratised organisation. This would be lethal to an experimental science such as medicine, and would tend to stifle the constant realisation that the ordinary man, when he is sick, is an individualist. Preservation of freedom in many forms is vital if the plan is adequately to serve the interests of the patient and to ensure continued medical progress in the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of disease.

Against this background, it is profitable to examine the extent to which the medical profession, the voluntary hospitals and the local authorities are in common agreement as to the best way in which the Government's aim can be achieved; for, as a starting point, all approve wholeheartedly of the aim. It is only the methods and the machinery that are controversial.

REPRESENTATIVE PLANNING BODIES

There is general agreement that right planning is the first essential to the satisfactory accomplishment of the service; and that the planning bodies that must of necessity be appointed should be representative of the local authorities, the voluntary hospitals and the medical profession. The Government's proposal that the local authorities should have the sole responsibility for planning has been criticised on several grounds. Of these, the chief were that local government bodies are elected on political considerations; their views must be subject to the fluctuation of local political opinion; and thus there was no guarantee that they had, or would have, the requisite knowledge alone to undertake such a responsibility. True, there were to be bodies of expert opinion for them to consult, but it was to be consultation through the letter-box rather than round the table. The ineffectiveness of consultation of this kind is notorious.

The desire of the doctors to be included in the bodies charged with planning has been misinterpreted in some quarters* as a movement towards technocracy.

The desire of the voluntary hospitals effectively to make their centuries of experience available in common council, also as members of the planning body, has been widely misinterpreted as evidence of their desire to control or interfere with the responsibilities of local authorities in expending the ratepayers' money.

A Report of the Special Sub-Committee of the Association of Municipal Corporations contains the following :—

"The functions of the proposed Area Authorities, constituted on the lines of the Joint Boards, as laid down in the White Paper, should include the preparation of an area plan for health services after consultation with the local authorities in the area and with the approval of the Minister, the general supervision and co-ordination of health services in their area, the initiation of broad lines of policy relating especially to the building, extension, equipment and staffing of hospitals, the approval of the appointment of consultants and senior medical staff in association with bodies representing the universities and the voluntary hospitals, and the approval, prior to submission to the Ministry of Health, of proposals for capital expenditure for hospital purposes.

"They are, however, of the opinion that the proposal to take over from the local authorities all hospital services and place them under the control of joint boards on the lines proposed is a retrograde step."

The War Emergency and Public Health Committee of the County Councils Association have passed resolutions including the following :—

"That, as regard the planning of the hospital and consultant services, the Committees have reached . . . the conclusion that areas even larger than those of the proposed joint authorities are desirable for this purpose. Accordingly, they suggest that, after consultation with the county and county borough councils immediately affected, some twelve or thirteen planning authorities be established for the whole of England and Wales, such authorities to consist of representatives of the administering authorities, the medical profession, the universities, the voluntary hospitals and other bodies concerned."

In their Draft Statement of Policy the British Medical Association state :—

"Pending the reform of areas and functions of existing local government authorities, there should be compulsorily established by legislation, in place of the Joint Board structure proposed in the White Paper, Regional Councils for national hospital and medical areas, not necessarily or usually conterminous with local authority boundaries. These Councils should be representative of local authorities, the medical profession and other vocational interests, and voluntary hospitals, the representatives to be appointed by the groups or bodies concerned. The function of these Regional Councils should be to advise the Minister on the planning of all hospital and health services in the region and on the disposition of centrally provided moneys."

* Medical Care for Citizens," a Broadsheet issued by Political and Economic Planning, June 1944.

The views of the British Hospitals Association on this aspect of the proposed National Health Service are stated in their memorandum thus :—

"It is considered that the one really satisfactory form of structure would be provided by means of regional hospital councils. These Regional Hospital Councils, to which should be attached a Regional Medical Advisory Committee, should be statutory bodies charged with the duty of planning in detail for the hospital, consultant and specialist services for their areas. They should consist primarily of equal representation from the local authorities and the voluntary hospitals, together with representatives of the consultant services.

"That the area within which the hospital service is to be co-ordinated and medical consultant service provided should be of sufficient size to make this feasible: should be determined by considerations relevant to a comprehensive health service: and, except where it is geographically impossible, should be based upon at least one of the teaching hospitals or centres, in order to ensure the raising of standards of diagnosis and treatment.

"The planning and administration of the service within the region must not involve interference with the management and administration of the participating hospitals, whether local authority or voluntary, and it must be understood that the management and administration of each hospital must remain with the individual hospital authorities."

King Edward's Hospital Fund for London have published a Statement of Principles for the National Health Service in which they say :—

"The country should be divided up into approximately 12 or 14 large regions, and each region should contain a number of areas according to the size of the population. It is very important that wherever possible the region should be based upon a University centre, in order to spread the influence of the University Teaching Hospitals throughout the country. If the standard of the hospital service of the country is to be raised, it is vital that backward hospitals, both voluntary and local authority, should be brought into close and regular contact with the leading centres of medical knowledge which are to be found in the University cities. Some form of regional organisation affords the only effective means of establishing and maintaining such contact.

"For each region there should be a Regional Hospitals Council and attached to it there should be a Medical Advisory Committee. The Regional Council should be equally representative of the voluntary hospitals and the local authorities. There must be genuine consultation between representatives of the voluntary hospitals and local authorities, and for this purpose they must meet as a common body. Past experience has proved conclusively that the suggestions for consultation proposed in the White Paper have no practical value."

Thus it will be seen that the position in regard to planning and policy, as it now stands, is that the major local authorities, the voluntary hospitals and the doctors, through their representative central associations, have each recorded views which are substantially in favour of the creation of planning bodies upon which all three parties would be adequately represented and which would meet round a common table. Thus would be secured that direct contact which is essential to the harmonising of their views in the design and the provision of an adequate hospital and consultant medical service in the given area.

SIZE OF PLANNING AREAS

In order to secure areas of sufficient size to enable co-ordination and to provide a planning and administrative organisation for each area, the White Paper proposed that two or more major local authorities should act together and for the purpose should form joint bodies to be called Joint Authorities (or, in Scotland, Joint Boards). In Scotland the position was dealt with differently for reasons peculiar to Scotland; there, in addition to the rather small area of the joint authority, provision was made in the White Paper for Regional Councils, of which there would be five for the whole of Scotland.

For England and Wales, it was understood that the joint authority areas would be about 40 in number and no provision for Regional Councils was contemplated. This large number of comparatively small areas would accentuate the difficulties of ultimate co-ordination of the medical and consultant service and therefore of the hospital services. The all-important influence of the university teaching centre would be lacking, or difficult to extend beyond the confines of the particular joint authority areas in immediate contiguity with the University, and difficulties might well arise regarding the treatment of patients in hospitals outside the sphere of the joint authority area in which they happen to reside.

There is evidence of growing appreciation of the hard facts that the provision and distribution of the consultants and specialists are the first step; and that this can only be effectively secured if each teaching hospital centre is able to create a "zone of influence" that will extend to all the hospitals, municipal and voluntary, within the area of provision of that consultant service. On this point, the Report of Inter-departmental Committee on Medical Schools, says:—

"In addition to the staff of a teaching centre being available for consultation and advice in respect of the care and treatment of individual patients, the medical school and teaching hospitals of the centre will, under our proposals, develop a series of educational associations with all the major hospitals in a wide area around. As a result of these associations, this area may aptly be regarded and described as the centre's 'zone of influence.' In so far as these major hospitals may be linked by means of their specialists with the outlying 'general practitioner' hospitals, there will be a measure of contact between the teaching centre and all hospitals in its zone of influence."

Neither would it be satisfactory to treat as a separate problem the provision and co-ordination of what are termed "ultra-specialist hospital services" (such as radium and deep X-ray therapy, surgery of the brain, etc.) to cover a net-work of joint authority areas.

The quotations already made from the views expressed by the principal parties concerned show that there is consensus of opinion in favour of the unit of co-ordination being a large region (not to be confused with Civil Defence or other classifications of "Region") with the concomitant university influence. There might be, say, twelve to fifteen such regions for the whole of England and Wales as well as the five proposed for Scotland.

DISTRIBUTION OF CONSULTANTS AND SPECIALISTS

It is interesting to record that problems similar to those raised by the Government's proposal for a National Health Service have recently been, or are, occupying the thoughts of people in our Dominions and many foreign countries.*

In each case the difficulty is to make readily available to all, the requisite medical (including institutional) services—preventive as well as curative. The crux of this problem in every case arises in part from maldistribution of doctors, whether general practitioners or consultants. The Government's White Paper gave considerable prominence to this factor. The medical profession through the British Medical Association has also drawn attention to this defect and to the lack of co-ordination between hospitals and general practitioners and public health services and clinics.

The problem of maldistribution will be solved in part by the manner in which consultants and specialists may be appointed to a small group of hospitals, having liaison with the key teaching hospital; and in part through the realisation that the economic conditions of tomorrow will make it necessary for all members of hospital medical staffs to receive payment for their hospital services.

For years the British Medical Association has advocated that hospital medical staffs should receive some payment in respect of their professional services to patients other than those receiving free maintenance in the hospital.†

Six months before the publication of the Beveridge Report, the voluntary hospitals in reviewing their own post-war policy, themselves decided that, in fairness to their visiting medical staffs, owing to changing conditions, it was essential that the principle of payment for services rendered should be conceded. Only amounts and methods of payment were deferred for consideration with the medical profession through the British Medical Association until the whole position in regard to the future of the health and hospital services should become more clear.

A NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE

Those local authorities which have appointed visiting consultant medical staffs to their hospitals, have, of course, remunerated them for their hospital services all along.

Thus again there is agreement between the three principal parties on a factor that will prove of considerable importance.

There is also general agreement among them that in each region or unit of co-ordination of services, there should be a Medical Advisory Committee upon which the university would be represented, its function being to advise in the matter of filling vacancies to the visiting medical staffs, both of voluntary and municipal hospitals, without, of course, any derogation from the right of the management committee of the particular hospital to make its own final selection and appointment.

With this measure of agreement on matters relating to the appointment and payment of hospital consultant and specialist staff, the solution of the problem of maldistribution becomes one of proper planning, combined with the recruitment of the additional number of doctors trained as specialists. The problem of augmenting the medical, nursing, technical and other services is one of importance which raises large issues, but is outside the scope of this article.

TWO HOSPITAL SYSTEMS?

There is one other aspect to which reference should be made. There are those who ask whether it is necessary to perpetuate two hospital systems.

In the minds of some this question may arise through the impression that the voluntary hospitals are no longer able to meet the whole of the demands for hospitalisation and because of the rapid strides that have been made by some local authorities in hospital provision.

It should be remembered that the voluntary hospitals have never set out to establish a comprehensive service for the whole nation. Having created the demand for hospitalisation, they have made continuous progress with extensions which, during the last two decades, have added not less than 1,500 beds annually to the total number available. Nevertheless, this steady increase has not sufficed to meet the whole of the need.

Full credit must be given to the endeavours of a certain number of enlightened local authorities in availing themselves of the powers given them by the Local Government Act, 1929, which in some places have resulted in the provision of municipal hospital services of which they have every reason to be proud. At the same time it must be realised that there are still many areas of which this cannot be said.

There can be no doubt but that there is enormous scope for local authority effort in the field of hospital provision, and that the future of the municipal hospital service is assured. The question as to whether there is need for two systems therefore resolves into the question—should the voluntary hospitals be retained? It is relevant here to mention the views of the medical profession on this point.

The profession has realised that with the increasing complexity of medical science, modification and development in the organisation of hospital services has become necessary; but it would deplore changes that might threaten, or even extinguish, the vital spark of freedom which has been the source of medical progress.*

It should be remembered that physicians and surgeons in this country have for centuries been educated and nurtured in traditions in which the progress of their science has flourished. Circumstances have enabled them to offer their services without direct fee or reward to the sick poor in voluntary hospitals: and, if for no other reason than the lack of facilities elsewhere, it is in the laboratories of voluntary hospitals that medical research workers have made their discoveries of supreme importance both in the prevention and treatment of disease. Doctors have been one of the main pillars on which the spirit of voluntary service has rested. Nowhere is this spirit more deeply ingrained than in the tradition of the voluntary hospitals of Britain.

There is another answer to the question—"Should there be two systems?" It is that the voluntary hospital service has accumulated tradition and experience of centuries, while the experience of the local authorities is of comparatively recent origin. If the voluntary hospitals were eliminated by the municipalisation of the whole hospital service there would be no touchstone against which the efficiency of the one service could be judged. The preservation of two systems not only provides the necessary check on standards, but the necessary healthy stimulus of constant endeavour to improve those standards.

It can properly and reasonably be said that in the wide field of endeavour that lies ahead there is plenty of room for both municipal and voluntary effort. This principle has been acknowledged by the Government, whose plan is based on the working of two systems side by side in a co-ordinated system for the nation as a whole.

* "Hospital Policy," B.M.A., 1936, para. 33.

A NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE

If this is true, it gives yet further evidence—were this necessary—of the vital importance of the whole structure of the health service being designed in a way that will ensure the closest understanding, foster goodwill and bind in a real and effective partnership all those who, inescapably, must be the principal agents in giving effect to a proposal magnificent in conception, revolutionary in nature, but of necessity evolutionary in accomplishment.

December 1944.

The Association of County Medical Officers of Health have during this year passed a resolution reading :—

“ This Association is of the opinion that the working of the White Paper Scheme as outlined (with possible modifications) will depend largely on co-operation between the various parties, namely, doctors, voluntary hospitals and the local and central Government Departments.”

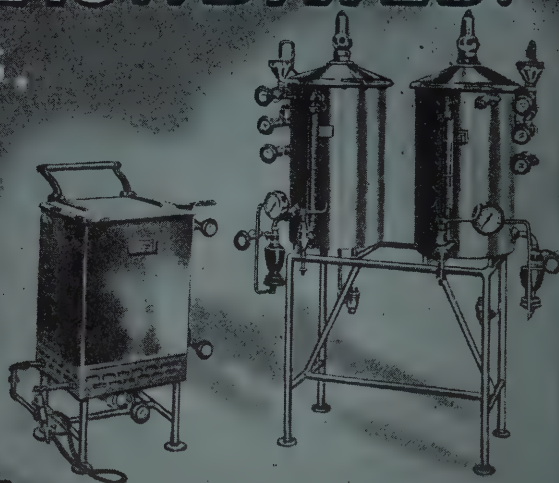

It will be seen that the measure of agreement or common ground already attained is substantial; probably much more substantial than has so far been generally realised. It augurs well for the future.

ACCOUNTANCY STAFFS OF LARGE GENERAL HOSPITALS.

Certain hospitals regarding which information has kindly been supplied have been omitted, because, either on account of the possession of considerable estates or for some similar reason, the accountancy staff is altogether upon a different scale. It is not possible to allocate the personnel or the work done to the separate activities.

There is also a group of hospitals of similar size to those given in this memorandum in which there is no definite accountancy department. It would be misleading to include these with the hospitals detailed below as it is not possible to allocate personnel or costs.

FIRE PREVENTION DUTIES.

LIABILITY OF FEMALE* MEMBERS OF HOSPITAL STAFFS.

By SIR WILLIAM BAYNES, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

1. It is important to distinguish between the two principal Statutory Orders dealing with fire watching, viz. :—

(a) The Civil Defence (Compulsory Enrolment) Order No. 1654 of 1942. In this Note this Order is called the Compulsory Enrolment Order, and the obligations imposed by it are referred to as "public fire watching."

(b) The Fire Prevention (Business Premises) Order No. 1411 of 1941, as amended by two later Orders. In this Note this Order is called the Business Premises Order, and the obligations imposed by it are referred to as "fire duty at a hospital." For the purposes of this Order "business premises" includes hospitals.

2. Both these Orders only apply to those areas which have been prescribed by the Minister of Home Security (or by the Regional Commissioner if delegated to exercise this power), or to particular hospitals or other premises so prescribed in other areas.

3. It should be noted that the exemptions are different under the two Orders, and also that in some cases, where they appear at first sight to be identical, the exemptions are in fact absolute under one Order but merely permissive under the other.

PUBLIC FIRE WATCHING

4. Under the Compulsory Enrolment Order every woman resident in a prescribed area (see para. 2) who is a British subject and who is of the prescribed age (i.e., who has attained the age of 20 but has not attained the age of 45) is obliged to register her name with the appropriate Local Authority of the area in which she resides; i.e., the Council of a County Borough, County, District, or Metropolitan Borough, or the Common Council of the City of London, or (in Scotland) with the County Council or Town Council.

5. The only exemption from such registration (or the only one likely to be of interest to hospital staffs) is for those who are duly qualified Medical Practitioners.

6. Generally speaking, every woman so registered will be enrolled for duty and may be required by the Local Authority to do public fire watching for not more than 48 hours in every period of four weeks in the area where she resides. But she cannot be detailed for such duty at any factory or other business premises or at Government Department Buildings.

7. There are, however, a number of exceptions to this general rule exempting women, in whole or in part, from fire watching, viz. :—

Absolute Exemptions

(a) Women engaged in whole-time nursing.

(b) Midwives† ordinarily engaged in whole-time midwifery.

(c) Women who are pregnant are exempted during the period of pregnancy and for six weeks after. A medical certificate must be produced.

(d) A woman having a child (whether her own or not) under 14 years of age in her care and living and sleeping where she lives and sleeps.

(e) Women working at a hospital for exceptionally long hours—which has been declared to mean more than 55 hours a week. A certificate from the hospital is required.

(f) Women doing fire duty (outside their working hours) at the hospital where they work. The number of their hours of fire duty is immaterial.

(g) Women working at a hospital and performing duties there (outside their working hours) with the object of forestalling or mitigating hostile attack, provided they do such duty for not less than 48 hours in four weeks. A certificate from the hospital is required.

(h) Women enrolled by a Local Authority or a hospital for giving voluntary assistance in connection with the admission or transference of patients, and in attendance for that purpose for not less than 48 hours in four weeks. A certificate signed on behalf of the Minister of Health or of the Secretary of State for Scotland is required.

(i) Any woman who at the date of the registration notice has already undertaken to perform any civil defence duties (other than

* This note refers to women throughout because it has been prepared to explain the position of women now that Fire Watching duties have been imposed on them; but in fact the greater part of the note applies equally to men and women.

† "Midwife" means a woman certified under the Midwives Acts, 1902 to 1926, or the Midwives (Scotland) Acts, 1915 and 1927, a woman who is deemed to be a certified midwife by virtue of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, Reg. 33, or a woman whose name is entered on the register of pupils maintained by the Central Midwives Board or the Central Midwives Board for Scotland.

fire prevention duties) for not less than 48 hours in four weeks. If she performs these duties in a different area from the one she lives in, she must obtain a certificate from the Local Authority of the area where she is doing duty.

(j) Women employed at a hospital on night work are exempted from public fire watching, in whole or in part according to the hours of night work performed. A certificate from the hospital is required. The same rules apply as for men.

(k) Women enrolled by and doing public fire watching for another Local Authority.

Permissive Exemptions

(l) A woman may be released from public fire watching by the Local Authority if she moves out of that Authority's area. If the Authority refuses to release her, she has a right of appeal to an Exemption Tribunal.

(m) A woman may be exempted by an Exemption Tribunal on the ground of her medical unfitness to perform the duty of public fire watching.

(n) A woman may be exempted by an Exemption Tribunal or be granted a reduction of hours of duty on the ground of exceptional hardship.

(o) The Minister of Home Security has a general power of directing the exemption of any such persons as he thinks fit.

FIRE DUTY AT A HOSPITAL

8. Under the Business Premises Order every woman working at a hospital* to which the Order applies (see para. 2) who is a British subject and of the prescribed age (i.e., over 20 and under 45) is required to perform such fire prevention duties at the hospital as may be allotted to her under the arrangements for the hospital; provided that she cannot be required to perform such duties for more than 48 hours (outside her working hours) during every four weeks.

9. All members of the Nursing Staff are therefore liable for fire duty at a hospital, subject to the general exemptions for all women as stated below. It is understood, however, that the Royal College of Nursing has approached the Minister of Home Security with the view of obtaining exemption for all members of Nursing Staffs.

10. Women are not to be allotted fire duty at a hospital (outside their working hours) between noon and 6 p.m. on Saturday or on another approved weekday. This is intended to facilitate their weekly shopping.

11. If persons of both sexes are performing fire duty at a hospital at the same time outside their working hours, separate provision must be made for each sex as regards sleeping accommodation, facilities for washing and sanitary conveniences.

12. The Order provides that, so far as practicable, certain arrangements shall be made to give some relief to persons employed in night work.

13. The general exemptions from fire duty at a hospital, in so far as they may affect women, are the following :—

Absolute Exemptions

(a) Pregnant women are exempted during the period of pregnancy and for six weeks after.

(b) A woman having a child (whether her own or not) under the age of 14 in her care and living and sleeping where she lives and sleeps.

(c) A woman who is also working at other business premises (which includes hospitals) and is performing fire duty there outside her working hours.

(d) Any woman who had already, before the 15th August, 1942, undertaken to perform civil defence duties (other than fire prevention duties) for not less than 48 hours in every four weeks.

Permissive Exemptions

(e) The Local Authority may exempt from fire duty at a hospital, wholly or partly, any woman engaged upon duties undertaken to forestall or mitigate hostile attack on the hospital.

(f) A woman may be exempted by an Exemption Tribunal on the ground of her medical unfitness to perform fire duty at a hospital.

(g) The Local Authority may exempt from fire duty at a hospital, in whole or in part, any woman working there for exceptionally long hours—which has been declared to mean more than 55 hours a week.

(h) A woman may be exempted by an Exemption Tribunal or be granted a reduction of hours of fire duty at a hospital on the ground of exceptional hardship—which appears to mean “on personal grounds.” Neither the nature of her work nor the length of her working hours may be put forward as a ground for this exemption or reduction. No such exemption is to be granted during working hours, or during ordinary meal or rest intervals not exceeding one and a half hours.

* This includes women working for the hospital, though not on the premises, if they have to report at the hospital at least once a week.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE FOR NURSES TO NURSE SICK RELATIVES.

Hospital.	Extract from rules or observations of Secretary.
A	Matron may grant leave of absence to a nurse in consequence of serious illness of members of her family for 3 days to enable her to arrange for prolonged care. If no satisfactory arrangements are possible, leave of absence up to 3 months on production of a medical certificate that nursing care is necessary and is not otherwise procurable. For the first month half pay is given and afterwards leave will be without pay. After 3 months the Nursing Committee shall decide as to continuation of the appointment.
B	Leave of absence is not granted except to nurse immediate relatives, i.e., mother, father, brother, sister. There has been a definite decline in the number of applications for such leave in recent months.
C	No definite minute on the subject but, in view of the number of applications received, a special ruling has been made that no leave of absence can be granted for this purpose.
D	In the regulations for the engagement of nurses it is stated that nurses will not be granted leave of absence in order to nurse friends or relatives. Until a letter or telegram is produced stating that a relative is very seriously ill no action is taken.
E	Very rarely do trained nurses apply for such leave but probationers frequently do. All such applications are dealt with sympathetically where home conditions indicate that the nurse's presence is really necessary. No definite regulations exist regarding such leave.
F	No great increase in the number of such applications. The matron feels that, in view of the shortage of domestic labour, more leniency must be shown to the applicants than would be the case in peacetime.
G	No increase in number of requests received. Each is treated by the matron on its merits and leave is usually taken as part of the applicant's holiday or, by permission of the committee, without pay. The length of service of the nurse, the nearness of the relative who is sick and the nature of the illness are all taken into account.
H	No difficulty being experienced as a result of such applications for leave. The permission of the Committee of Management has to be obtained before it is granted, the matron only being empowered to grant leave in case of extreme urgency.
I	Each application is treated on its merits. Request is always granted if it is evident that the sick relative has no one to care for him or her. Cases of prolonged absence would be reviewed periodically, but this has not yet been necessary. Non-resident members of the staff are not granted such leave.
J	Are experiencing difficulty, the reason, apparently, being the scarcity of domestic staff available for private households and the shortage of suitable persons who could be temporarily engaged. Compassionate leave is granted as occasion arises.
K	Usual practice is to grant 1 week's compassionate leave but very few applications are received.
L	2 weeks' such leave is granted to nurses during training. Any further period has to be made up when normal training is completed.
M	Very few such requests have been received. Nurses have always been willing to take the leave as part of their annual holiday.
N	It is unreasonable not to grant leave to a trained nurse to nurse a parent, brother or sister for acute illness when a time limit of about a month or six weeks can be fixed. The nursing of chronic cases should, however, be excluded altogether.
O	No marked increase in number of applications received. On production of a medical certificate stating that her services are really necessary the nurse is usually given one week's leave with pay. Any further extension is without pay. This applies to both trained staff and probationers.

MEMORANDUM No. 172.

IMMUNISATION OF PATIENTS AGAINST DIPHTHERIA
IN CHILDREN'S HOSPITALS.

Hospital.	Remarks on the desirability of introducing compulsory immunisation before admission.
A	Before 1940 routine immunisation was carried out on long-term cases. Immunisation does not prevent "Carriers." Restrictions should not be imposed until total immunity is obtained. The alternative is to put every admission on routine infections precautions. Unjustifiable to introduce compulsion for admission when immunisation is still a voluntary matter.
B	It is better to stress to parents the importance of immunisation than to restrict admissions only to those who have been immunised. At this hospital the form of consent to the performance of an operation bears also agreement to the administering of serum.
C	There is no law to compel parents to have their children immunised and not to admit a patient because it has not been immunised may cause serious trouble in the health of children.
D	It would be extremely difficulty to enforce. All probationer nurses are immunised before commencing their training.
E	Parents should be encouraged to have their children so treated. An Immunology Clinic has been maintained for some years and notices displayed in the Out-patient Department call the attention of parents to these facilities for guarding children against infectious diseases.
F	It is a question whether such a regulation could be rigidly applied and great difficulties are foreseen especially with emergency cases.
G	In the matter of immunisation the public must be educated and hospitals should co-operate in the education.
H	It is thought it would be an extremely difficult regulation to carry into effect.
I	Considered most undesirable to insist on immunisation before admission. The right is reserved to carry out both active and passive immunisation if considered necessary while the child is in hospital. All children transferred to the Seaside Home are immunised as a routine measure.

In none of the above hospitals is immunisation compulsory before admission, and the same applies to several other hospitals to which the enquiry was sent.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Object of Survey.

THE object of this Survey is the presentation in as full detail as possible of the position of the Hospitals in Great Britain and Ireland with reference to :—

- (a) The facilities available for treatment and the extent to which they are utilised,
- (b) The annual cost involved and the several sources from which the funds are derived.

Arrangement of Tables.

In the main tables the Voluntary Hospitals are grouped under the headings :—

Group A. Hospitals having 100 or more beds.

Group B. Hospitals having 30 to 99 beds.

Group C. Hospitals having less than 30 beds.

In addition, Tables of the details of the work and finances of the following special groups are given :—

General Hospitals associated with Medical Schools.

"	"	without Medical Schools				containing 200 or more	available beds.
"	"	"	"	"	"	150 to 199	"	"
"	"	"	"	"	"	125 to 149	"	"
"	"	"	"	"	"	100 to 124	"	"
"	"	"	"	"	"	30 to 99	"	"
"	"	"	"	"	"	Less than 30	"	"

Children's Hospitals ; Ear, Nose and Throat Hospitals ; Eye Hospitals ; Women's Hospitals ; Maternity Hospitals, etc. ; etc.

Omission from the tables of certain Hospitals.

As announced in the 1939 edition of the Year-Book (page xlv), the figures of hospitals which, after full notice, have failed to comply with certain minimum requirements in uniform accounting, do not appear in these Tables. These requirements are :—

- (a) The rendering of an Annual Report by a prescribed date.
 - (b) The adoption of the Calendar Year for the Annual Accounts.
 - (c) The presentation of the accounts on the lines laid down in the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts, or (temporarily) in a form admitting of adjustment to comply with it.
- Explanations and notes of the effect of this requirement on certain hospitals will be found on pp. 21 and 22.

Adjustments to figures.

An attempt has been made to present the figures of all hospitals upon the basis of the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts. Slight divergences from the figures published in the Annual Reports of a few hospitals will consequently be found.

The figures in the Tables giving particulars of groups of hospitals include the returns made by a few hospitals covering a period longer than 12 months. This is generally due to some such cause as the changing of the date of the termination of the official year.

Definition of London area.

For the purposes of the Statistical Tables and the Directory of Voluntary Hospitals, London is regarded as the area covered by King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, viz., the same as the Metropolitan and City of London Police Districts. This area includes portions of the counties of Essex, Hertfordshire, Kent, Middlesex and Surrey in addition to the whole of the County of London. Similarly, all hospitals under the control of the London County Council are grouped together, whether they are situated in the County of London or not.

"Available" beds of London hospitals.

The figures of "available" beds of the London hospitals are the average daily bed complement during the year after deducting beds temporarily closed for Rebuilding, Extensions, Repairs, or other causes.

Thanks.

The Editor desires to express thanks to King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, to the Chairmen and Officers of the Voluntary Hospitals and to the Public Authorities who have kindly supplied information.

HOME AMBULANCE SERVICE

Telephone : Sloane 9828 & 7136.

Headquarters : The Joint Council of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society, 12, Grosvenor Crescent, London, S.W. 1.

THE Home Ambulance Service of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society was set up in 1919 with the intention of providing better means of transport for the sick and injured throughout the country.

The end of the War afforded an opportunity for meeting a want that had become seriously urgent.

At the time the Armistice was signed, a large number of the ambulances of the Order and Society was still effective. Many had been shattered by enemy gun-fire. There was, however, a considerable number that could be made available for a further period of service.

Happily it was at this moment that the two organisations decided that the need for united efforts had not ceased with the War. It was arranged that for certain purposes they should continue to work together in promoting the health of the community, and one of the first steps they undertook in that direction was the organisation of a National Ambulance Service for England, Ireland and Wales.

The Committee has every reason to believe that the Home Ambulance Service has become an important link in the chain of organisations for the promotion of the health of the community, and that the co-operation of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society in its establishment has been justified by the result.

HOSPITAL SERVICE AND PRIVATE HIRE.

Arrangements may be made by telephone or letter for the conveyance of patients from London to any part of the country.

A male attendant always accompanies the driver of the ambulance.

A charge of 10s. is made for the conveyance of a patient from any address within the administrative County of London to any Hospital in the same area.

By arrangement with Hospital Almoners a service is maintained for the transfer of patients from Hospitals to Convalescent Homes.

A female attendant accompanies all convalescent cases and if sufficient notice is given a similar arrangement may be made for the Private Hire Service.

LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL AMBULANCE SERVICE.

HEADQUARTERS : THE COUNTY HALL, S.E. 1. Telephone No. : Waterloo 3311.

I. Ambulances Supplied without Payment.

THE Council provides, within the Administrative County of London, ambulances, free of cost, for the conveyance to :—

A. Hospitals and/or private residences of :—

Persons meeting with accidents or suffering from sudden illnesses in the streets, public places, places of employment, etc.

B. Hospitals :—

(i) Persons meeting with accidents in their homes ;

(ii) Persons suffering from illnesses in their homes if a medical practitioner certifies that the case is one of life or death, and that arrangements have been made for the reception of the patient in a hospital ;

(iii) Parturient women, if the case is one of urgency, whether from the home, place of business, or elsewhere, on the application of a qualified medical practitioner or certified midwife, provided that either a doctor or midwife accompanies the case ; and

(iv) Non-urgent cases of parturition.

In such cases admission to a maternity bed must have previously been arranged and a card (issued by the Council to hospitals and municipal maternity homes) for such admission obtained. This card must be handed to the ambulance attendant at the time of removal.

In these cases a nurse or a female friend must accompany the patient. The patient may also be accompanied by her husband.

(Note.—The Corporation of the City of London maintains its own ambulance service for dealing with cases of accident and illness occurring in the streets within the City area.)

How to obtain an ambulance for :—

Cases coming under classes A and B (i).

No telephone number is required ; dial “ 999 ” and ask the operator for “ AMBULANCE.”

Cases coming under classes B (ii), (iii) and (iv).

Ask the telephone operator (or dial) for one of the headquarters telephone numbers, namely : WATERloo 6000, NEW Cross 2645, CENTral 6301, or REGent 4000.

When communication has been effected, particulars should be clearly given in this order : Place of accident or illness, name of the caller.

C. The Council's hospitals for infectious cases.

D. The Council's hospitals and institutions for non-infectious cases.

In cases coming under class D no charge is made at the time of removal, but there is a liability to assessment of a charge based on the patient's ability to pay.

II. Ambulances Supplied on Payment.

E. Ambulances and ambulance omnibuses are also provided by the Council, when not required for the purposes stated above, on payment of charges, as laid down from time to time by the Council, for the conveyance of infectious and non-infectious cases between private houses, hospitals (other than to the Council's hospitals, etc., under the provisions of Section I) nursing homes and for examinations, consultations and treatment by specialists or at special establishments.

The conveyance of private persons between addresses both of which are outside the administrative county of London cannot be undertaken, unless in circumstances of exceptional urgency.

Arrangements for the reception of an infectious case must be made by or on behalf of the patient before application for an ambulance is sent to the Council.

How to obtain an ambulance for :—

Cases coming under classes C, D and E :—

Application should be made by telephone to Headquarters Telephone No. WATERloo 3311, when full information and the charge for any proposed removal may be obtained at any hour of the day or night, including Sundays and public holidays.

DISTRICT NURSING.

Patients who require skilled nursing in their own homes and who are unable to provide themselves with private care can be attended by district nurses. The country is almost completely covered by District Nursing Associations, 2,229 of which in Great Britain and Ireland are in affiliation with the Queen's Institute of District Nursing and therefore employ fully trained nurses.

The nurses carry out any treatment ordered by doctors whether the patient is under the care of a private, panel or District Medical Officer, or is a patient receiving treatment at a hospital. Application can be made direct to the nurse, whose address can be obtained from the Queen's Institute. The Institute can also generally supply the addresses of unaffiliated nursing associations.

Necessitous cases are nursed free of charge but the Public Assistance Authorities, recognising the value of the service, make grants to nursing associations for their nurses' visits and these, with voluntary subscriptions and donations, assist to maintain the funds required to provide free or partly free visits.

Of recent years, as the financial position of the average patient has improved, a larger proportion of income has been derived from the people themselves and the introduction of Contributory or "Provident" schemes has become very general. These originated in rural areas where a subscription of from 1*d.* to 2*d.* weekly has been collected from house to house. This is now likely to be raised to a minimum of 1½*d.* They are now organised in urban areas on subscription of 1*d.* and 1½*d.* weekly according to the size of the population and type of area, whether residential or industrial. For families with incomes above National Health Insurance limit the subscription recommended is from 10*s.* a year. Subscriptions are collected by pay roll deductions, collections in places of employment and in various groups in the towns, often connected with women's, political and other meetings. In some places the hospital and nursing association have agreed to a combined contribution for their respective benefits, but in no case has the institution of a separate scheme for nursing proved to be competitive with that of the hospital, the one service being complementary to the other. Future developments of these schemes are likely to be (a) standardization of the rate of contribution, (b) development of reciprocal arrangements between associations, (c) regional organizations. Provident schemes have undoubtedly been the means of bringing skilled nursing attention to many patients who might otherwise have lacked this service and have brought much additional support to District Nursing Associations.

(For particulars of Queen's Institute of District Nursing see pages 245, 248 and 249.)
